

SPOTLIGHT ON

Audax®

Audax are worldwide leaders and pioneers in developing body worn video technology, showcasing all their latest technology at Mission Critical Technologies.

“Audax chose to exhibit at Mission Critical Technologies because the inaugural and pioneering event shared our vision in addressing the global public safety market’s need to be quicker, smarter and more efficient. As part of TechXLR8 and London Tech Week, we had high expectations and these were met with a high level of international specifiers and influencers in attendance, all being from our target market and all gathered under the same roof. This ensured a busy event for us and made our brand and product promotion that much more effective.”
